Threads of change: Universal values for a better tomorrow

In the intricate mosaic of human existence, Universal Human Values are timeless guideposts, providing a foundation for individuals across diverse backgrounds and cultures. As Albert Einstein once profoundly remarked, "Our task must be to free ourselves by widening our circle of compassion to embrace all living creatures and the whole of nature and its beauty." At their core, these values—compassion, empathy, integrity, tolerance—forge connections that transcend the boundaries of geography and ideology. One of the profound benefits lies in the cultivation of compassionate connections. As Dalai Lama wisely expressed, "Love and compassion are necessities, not luxuries. Without them, humanity cannot survive." When individuals prioritise understanding and caring for one another, it fosters a sense of community and shared humanity. Compassionate connections enrich personal relationships and contribute to the creation of a more harmonious global society where differences are celebrated rather than divisive.

This journey into universal values leads to a second benefit—inner fulfilment. As Mahatma Gandhi eloquently stated, "Happiness is when what you think, what you say, and what you do are in harmony." Living in alignment with these values, such as honesty and authenticity, provides a profound sense of inner peace and purpose. In a world often preoccupied with material success, individuals anchored in these values, experience a more enduring and meaningful satisfaction. Integrity becomes the compass guiding life choices, leading to a deep-seated contentment that extends beyond external circumstances.

Universal Human Values are the bedrock for conflict resolution, the third transformative benefit. Nelson Mandela's words resonate powerfully in this context: "No one is born hating another person because of the colour of his skin, or his background, or his religion. People must learn to hate, and if they can learn to hate, they can be taught to love." By promoting tolerance, respect, and understanding, these values become powerful tools in navigating disputes and disagreements. Whether on a global scale or within interpersonal relationships, engaging in constructive dialogue rooted in shared values promotes understanding and unity over discord. This aspect becomes especially critical in fostering a world where diverse perspectives coexist peacefully.

Cultivating resilience is a fourth benefit derived from embracing Universal Human Values. As Winston Churchill famously said, "Success is not final, failure is not fatal: It is the courage to continue that counts." Values like perseverance and optimism, inherent to the human spirit, offer strength in the face of challenges. Individuals grounded in these virtues find the courage to overcome adversity, adapting to change with grace and resilience. The ability to bounce back from setbacks becomes a personal attribute and a collective strength that enables communities to weather storms and emerge stronger.

Lastly, Universal Human Values promote a sense of global citizenship, forming the basis for the fifth transformative benefit. As Mother Teresa profoundly stated, "I alone cannot change the world, but I can cast a stone across the waters to create many ripples." Individuals who embrace these values recognise their interconnectedness with the broader world. This perspective fosters a collective responsibility for the well-being of the planet, promoting sustainable practices and environmental stewardship. In a world grappling with global challenges, the sense of global citizenship cultivated through universal values catalyses collaborative action and positive change.

In conclusion, embracing Universal Human Values transcends individual lives, weaving a tapestry of compassion, understanding, and collective well-being. From enriching personal relationships to fostering global citizenship, the transformative power of these values is evident in their ability to shape a more harmonious world. As individuals and societies navigate the complexities of the modern era, the timeless wisdom embedded in Universal Human Values serves as a beacon, guiding humanity towards a future where shared humanity takes precedence over division.

President Message

Dear Readers,

Welcome to the 14th edition, the third issue of Srusti's Alumni Xpress. As we navigate the dynamic landscape of business education, it has become increasingly imperative for us to instil the values of Ethics, Sustainability, and Governance in the minds of our future leaders. We delve into our institution's profound commitment towards fostering responsible management practices.

The Cornerstone of Leadership

"In the end, we will remember not the words of our enemies, but the silence of our friends." - Martin Luther King Jr.

In an era where profits and ethical standards measure businesses, our college significantly emphasises shaping ethical leaders. Our curriculum is designed to cultivate a sense of responsibility and integrity among our students. From case studies that explore ethical dilemmas to real-world simulations, our goal is to prepare graduates who can navigate complex business environments with a moral compass.

You'll find many inspiring stories of our alumni who have embraced ethical leadership in their respective fields. Their experiences serve as a testament to the enduring impact of ethical education and its role in shaping a brighter, more principled future.

Building a Greener Tomorrow

"The Earth does not belong to us: we belong to the Earth." - Marlee Matlin

As stewards of the future, our students are not only taught to manage businesses efficiently but also to do so sustainably. Sustainability is not just a buzzword for us; it's a commitment to ensure that our actions today do not compromise future generations' well-being.

This brings to light our college's initiatives to reduce its ecological footprint. From energy-efficient campuses to innovative waste management programs, we are actively contributing to a sustainable future. We also feature interviews with faculty members who are experts in sustainable business practices, providing valuable insights into the intersection of business and environmental responsibility.

Shaping Responsible Decision-Makers

"The best way to predict the future is to create it." - Peter Drucker

Effective governance is the bedrock of successful organisations. Our college recognises the importance of grooming individuals who can make informed and responsible decisions. From boardroom simulations to in-depth studies on corporate governance models, we are equipping our students with the skills needed to lead with transparency and accountability.

This explores the role of governance in modern business through interviews with industry leaders and analyses of recent corporate success stories. It highlights the experiences of our students who have participated in governance-focused internships, gaining firsthand insights into the challenges and triumphs of responsible decision-making.

As we peruse the pages of this magazine, let's celebrate the strides our college has taken in shaping a new generation of leaders – leaders who understand the value of ethics, are committed to sustainability and embody the principles of good governance.

Thank you for joining us on this journey of exploration and discovery!

Alumni Interview

Interviewer: Good afternoon, everyone. I'm Ms. Sarita Manjari Prusti from Srusti Academy of Management, and we have our esteemed alumnus, Mr. Ashish Mohanty, here with us. Welcome, sir. How do you feel being back?

Mr. Asish Mohanty: Thank you, ma'am. It's an honor to revisit Srusti Academy of Management. Being a part of the 5-7 batch, and witnessing the growth and challenges, it's a proud moment for me.

Interviewer: Great to have you here. Can you give a brief introduction?

Mr. Asish Mohanty: Certainly. I'm Ashish Mohanty, an alumnus of the fifth-seventh batch, currently serving as the HR Manager at Metro Max Growth. With 14 years in HR, I've worked across various facets, overseeing HR teams in India and the US, leading a traditional marketing team at Selsim, and heading a cybersecurity team.

Interviewer: Impressive journey, sir. How was your college life at Srusti?

Mr. Asish Mohanty: College life at Srusti was challenging and transformative. The support from faculty, including V.P, Dr. U. K. Dash, Director, G. D. Mishra and Chairman Er. Saroj Ku. Sahoo, was exceptional. It was a life-changing opportunity that set the foundation for my career.

Interviewer: Any favourite moments?

Mr. Ashish Mohanty: Despite not excelling academically, receiving awards for extracurricular activities from Mr. Soumya Patnaik, the editor of a newspaper, was a turning point. It motivated me to excel in both academics and other pursuits.

Interviewer: Precious indeed. What challenges did you face during your college days?

Mr. Asish Mohanty: Limited facilities, a small library, and fewer books posed challenges. However, the experience of group studies and case studies prepared us for interviews and corporate life.

Interviewer: Moving on to managerial skills, what do you believe is more crucial for managerial students – knowledge or skills?

Mr. Asish Mohanty: Skills take precedence, but they're built on a foundation of knowledge. Both are integral and must be cultivated simultaneously. Students need to continuously enhance their skills, recognizing that growth is a personal responsibility.

Interviewer: Any specific skills you'd recommend?

Mr. Asish Mohanty: Students should access and analyze their skill set regularly, identifying areas for improvement. College provides support, but personal initiative and continuous learning are key to success.

Interviewer: A valuable perspective. Any message for current students?

Mr. Asish Mohanty: Life is more challenging now. Professionals must prove their versatility, taking on multiple roles. Be accountable for your responsibilities, continuously enhance your skills, and remember, that personal growth is driven from within.

Interviewer: Thank you, sir, for sharing your insights and experiences with us.

Memory Lane

My stepping stone place to begin my career over here. We are part of this awesome institute since inception. I wish all the very best for the great students of this excellent institute.
